123; Schaefer, 53. Slosson struck a pair of tough breaks at the beginning of his seventh inning, but he was equal to the emergency, and in twelve shots had the balls gathered at the lower end, and at 32 ended a fine prospect by a miscue. Schaefer seemed in a fair way to do something in the eighth, but again the balls lined on him and when he missed a one-cushion shot he left a set-up, which Slosson utilized to the extent of 27, and now had a strong lead—202 to Schaefer's 91. Schaefer found the balls safe for his pinth, but left them well for Slosson, who settled down to business in fine style, and made a neat run of 57. This did his best work, playing a wide balk line with splendid precision. At 80 he failed on a very difficult masse shot and left Slosson's ball frozen to the red. Slosson spotted them and at once got a good position at the head of the table. He handled them cleverly for a run of 83, in which he worked the balk line handsomely for a few shots, and now and then resorted to long drives, always with consummate accuracy. As he reached and passed Schnefer's run of 80 there was hearty cheering. He missed a rather easy draw at 83. Score: Slosson, 342; Schnefer, 171.

liards in his eleventh inning, but missed at 15 on a simple one-cushion shot. He struck a succession of discouraging safety leaves in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth innings, and scored four successive goose-eggs. Slosson got started again in the tifteenth inning, and went to his fifth string with a run of 62, in which he did some fine execution. Score: Slosson, 430; Schaefer, 186. In the seventeenth Schaefer got another chance, but his play was nervous and distressed, and be got but 19 e got but 19. In his eleventh shot in the nineteenth inning his ball was frozen to the white, but with a superb masse outward his ball returned and counted. Again at counted with a grand masse stroke. Loud cheers greeted both these shots. He kept the balls well under control for the most part at the upper end, but, in changing them to the other end, he got them out of easy reach, and at 85 failed on a one-cushion shot. Score: Slosson, 488; Schaefer, 376. Both men At the close of the twenty-ninth inning the score stood: Slosson, 583; Schaefer, 399. Schaefer rallied in the thirtythird inning with a grand run of 79, which carried his score to 501, Slosson 594. When Schaefer missed a difficult bank the balls were left well for Slosson, who easily ran 6, and closed the game at eight minutes before 11 o'clock. Schaefer and Vignaux play to-morrow

His daughter must overcome the attachment, he nevertheless conceived plans of escape. For soveral weeks after his conviction he noticed a pretty native girl who passed by his cage many times a day, and finally managed to engage her in conversation, and the result was that, with a file procured for him by the girl, Captain Pelletier made his escape from the cage. He then made his way to the shore, and, taking possession of an open boat, he put out to sea. After drifting about for four days without food or water, he was picked up by a vessel bound for Charleston. He reached there safely and then made his way to New York. In the mean time Mrs. Pelletier had heard that her husband was dead, and, upon the advice of friends, she, with her two children, left New York to live in Havana. Cuba. There she made the acquaintance of Jose Nenninger, and, after a short acquaintance, they were married.
